

Signing up for Corporation Tax Online - a beginner's guide

You'll find this guide useful if you're a Corporation Tax customer who hasn't yet signed up to use the HM Revenue & Customs (HMRC) Corporation Tax online service and would like some help to do this.

Before you can file your Company Tax Return online you must:

- register for HMRC Online Services
- enrol (or sign up) for the Corporation Tax online service
- activate (or switch on) the Corporation Tax online service

You need to do this, whether you choose to use HMRC's free Corporation Tax online filing software or commercially available software.

When you enrol for the Corporation Tax online service, you'll be given a User ID and asked to create a password. You'll need both every time you log in to use the online service.

Preparation

Before you begin, you need your company or organisation's Corporation Tax Reference and either of the following:

- Companies House registration number (CRN)
- the postcode of your registered office or if you don't have a registered office, the postcode of your main business address

Register and enrol

How you register and enrol for the Corporation Tax online service depends on whether you're already using other HMRC Online Services. If you are, please go to Section A below.

If this is your first time using HMRC Online Services, please go to Section B below.

Section A

If you're already registered as a company or unincorporated organisation (both shown on HMRC Online Services as an 'organisation') for other HMRC Online Services - such as PAYE or VAT - you can easily add the Corporation Tax online service to your existing account.

To do this, go to www.online.hmrc.gov.uk and log in to HMRC Online Services with your existing User ID and password. Under the 'Services you can add' section, follow the 'Enrol for service' link for 'Corporation Tax'. This takes you to the 'Enter details' page. On this page enter your Corporation Tax Reference and one of the two pieces of information mentioned earlier.

Click the 'Next' button and you will receive an on-screen confirmation of your enrolment to the Corporation Tax online service.

Section B

If you are new to using HMRC Online Services, you'll need to:

- register for HMRC Online Services

- enrol (or sign up) for the Corporation Tax online service
- activate (or switch on) the Corporation Tax online service

The following section gives an overview of this process, with a few sample screens to show you how this works.

You must set up your account at least seven days before you can complete and file your Company Tax Return online. This is especially important if you choose to file your return close to your company or organisation's filing deadline.

Go to the 'Welcome to Online Services' page at www.online.hmrc.gov.uk

Click the 'Register' button in the 'New users' section.

This will take you to the first 'New user' page. Please select 'Organisation'.
